HISTORY

The past, present and future at Wright-Patterson are all inextricably linked with the Wright brothers' legacy. The stories of the brother's early years, their bicycle shop, their printing business and their early aviation efforts are in evidence throughout the greater Dayton area.

Wright-Patterson's history as a military installation dates from World War I. Its aviation history, however, began in 1904-1905 when Wilbur and Orville Wright used an 84-acre plot of land, known as the Huffman Prairie Flying Field, for their experimental test flights. Here the Wright Brothers solved the final secrets of aerodynamics, learned to fly, and developed the first truly practical airplane—their 1905 Flyer. They returned to the Huffman Prairie Flying Field in 1910 to operate a pilot training school—The Wright Company School of Aviation—and a flight exhibition company.

When their operations ended in 1916, aviation had become a reality and a rich tradition of invention, operations, and education had been established on this sacred soil. The Huffman Prairie Flying Field was officially designated a National Historic Landmark in 1990 and became part of the newly created Dayton Aviation Heritage National Historical Park two years later.

When the United States entered World War I in 1917, three military installations were established in the Dayton area. Two of these would become part of Wright-Patterson AFB. The third was located near downtown Dayton. Their original missions—logistics, research and development, and military education—became the same mission performed at Wright-Patterson to this day.

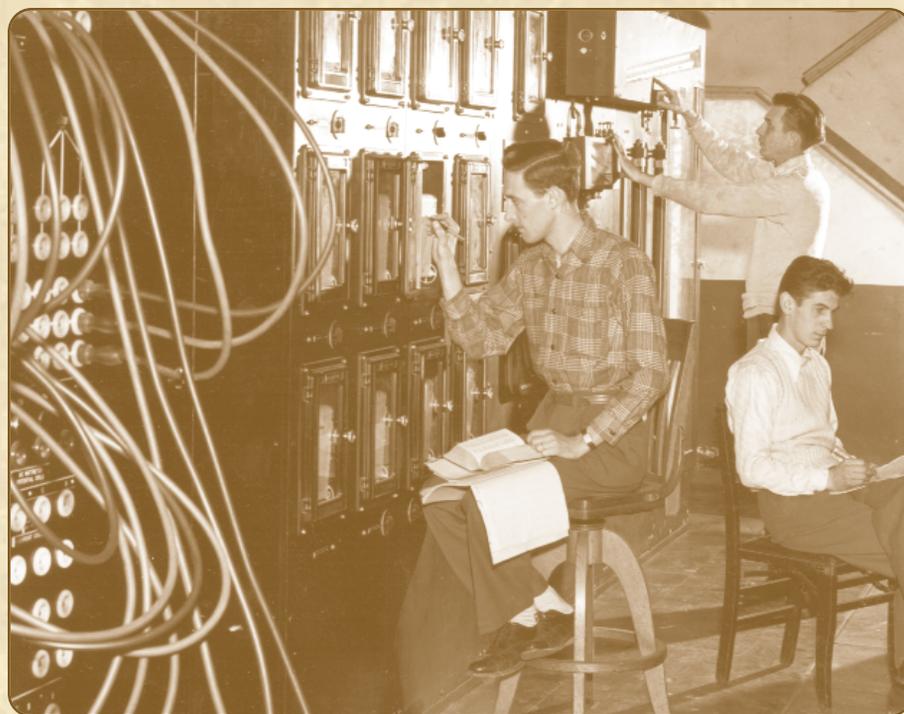

Wilbur Wright Field and the Fairfield Aviation General Supply Depot were adjacent installations located at what is today Area C of the base. Wilbur Wright Field was located on a 2,075-acre tract of land adjacent to the Mad River that was leased to the Army by the Miami Conservancy District. The lease included the Huffman Prairie Flying Field. The Signal Corps Aviation School established at the new airfield began operations in June 1917 as a training school for pilots. The field also housed an aviation mechanic's school and a school for armorers.

The Fairfield Aviation General Supply Depot was constructed on 40 acres of land purchased by the Army from the Miami Conservancy District, immediately adjacent to Wilbur Wright Field. It provided logistics support to Wilbur Wright Field and three other Signal Corps aviation schools located in the Midwest. Each day the depot received, stored, and issued equipment and supplies to the Signal Corps aviation schools in the region.

The third World War I military installation was McCook Field. This 254-acre complex located just north of downtown Dayton between Keowee Street and the Great Miami River was named for the “Fighting McCook” family of Civil War fame who once owned part of the land. McCook Field was the temporary home of the U.S. Army Signal Corps’ Airplane Engineering Division. As an engineering and research facility, McCook Field has been described as “the single most influential agency in the early years of American air power.” McCook’s engineers and technicians researched, developed, manufactured, tested, and evaluated military aircraft and all of their associated components and equipment.

Cooperation between the two geographically separated flying fields began in 1918 when Wilbur Wright Field agreed to let McCook Field use hangar and shop space as well as a force of enlisted mechanics to assemble and maintain airplanes and engines. Wilbur Wright Field’s expansive and relatively isolated open flying field also proved ideal for testing the Air Service’s experimental aircraft and the larger, more powerful models developed during the 1920s.

Following World War I, the training school at Wilbur Wright Field was discontinued. Wilbur Wright Field and the depot soon merged to form the Fairfield Air Depot. The depot remained active until 1946.

McCook Field remained in operation until 1927. The field's limited size could not accommodate the larger, more sophisticated aircraft that quickly emerged after World War I. "This Field is Small, Use It All!" was painted atop the airfield's hangars to warn pilots. When the Air Corps announced its intention to close McCook Field, local businessmen and citizens protested. The field offered a stable and expanding economic base for the community, and was also a great source of pride to the city that considered itself the birthplace of aviation.

Under the leadership of the Patterson family (who had founded the National Cash Register Company), prominent citizens formed the Dayton Air Service Committee, Inc. This organization mounted a massive public campaign that rose $425,000 in two days. It used the money to purchase 4,520.47 acres of land northeast of Dayton, including Wilbur Wright Field and the Huffman Prairie Flying Field. In 1924, the Committee presented the deeds to President Calvin Coolidge for the construction of a new aviation-engineering center. The entire acreage (including the Fairfield Air Depot) was designated Wright Field in honor of both Wright brothers.

Between 1925 and 1927, modern new facilities were built on the portion of Wright Field west of Huffman Dam to house all of the functions being relocated from old McCook Field. Orville Wright raised the flag over the new engineering center at the official dedication ceremony on October 12, 1927. The name "Wright Field" soon became synonymous with developments in the field of aeronautical engineering, a reputation that Wright-Patterson retains to the present day. This new portion of Wright Field became the headquarters of the Materiel Division, the main branch of the Army Air Corps responsible for developing advanced aircraft, equipment, and accessories. The division also procured and provided maintenance for all of these systems and was charged with managing the extensive Air Corps depot system.

Wright Field incorporated the entire installation. Many citizens in the local community, however, believed that part of the field should honor the Patterson family in some way as recognition for their leadership in keeping the engineering center in Dayton. This happened on July 1, 1931, when the portion of Wright Field east of Huffman Dam was re-designated "Patterson Field" in honor of Lt. Frank Stuart Patterson.

Frank Stuart Patterson, born in Dayton, Ohio, on November 6, 1897, was the son of Frank Jefferson Patterson and Julia Shaw Patterson. The elder Patterson and his brother, John H. Patterson, founded the National Cash Register Company and figured prominently in local Dayton history.

Frank Stuart attended Yale University, but graduated “in absentia” in the spring of 1918 because he, like many of his fellow classmates, had joined the Army. He enlisted in May 1917 and was commissioned in September as a first lieutenant in the Officers Reserve Corps with the aeronautical rating of pilot.

1st Lt. Patterson was assigned to the 137th Aero Squadron as a test pilot at Wilbur Wright Field the following May. On June 19, 1918, little more than a month after his arrival, Patterson and his aerial observer, Lt. LeRoy Amos Swan, went aloft in their DH-4 to test newly installed machine gun synchronizers. They completed two trials successfully, but during a steep dive on the third test the airplane’s wings collapsed and the aircraft crashed, killing both crewmen.

Patterson Field consisted of the land known today as Areas A and C of Wright-Patterson AFB. It included the Fairfield Air Depot and the Huffman Prairie Flying Field. Patterson Field soon became the Army’s center for aviation logistics, maintenance, and supply. Although Wright Field and Patterson Field were now two separate installations, their missions continued to be closely intertwined.

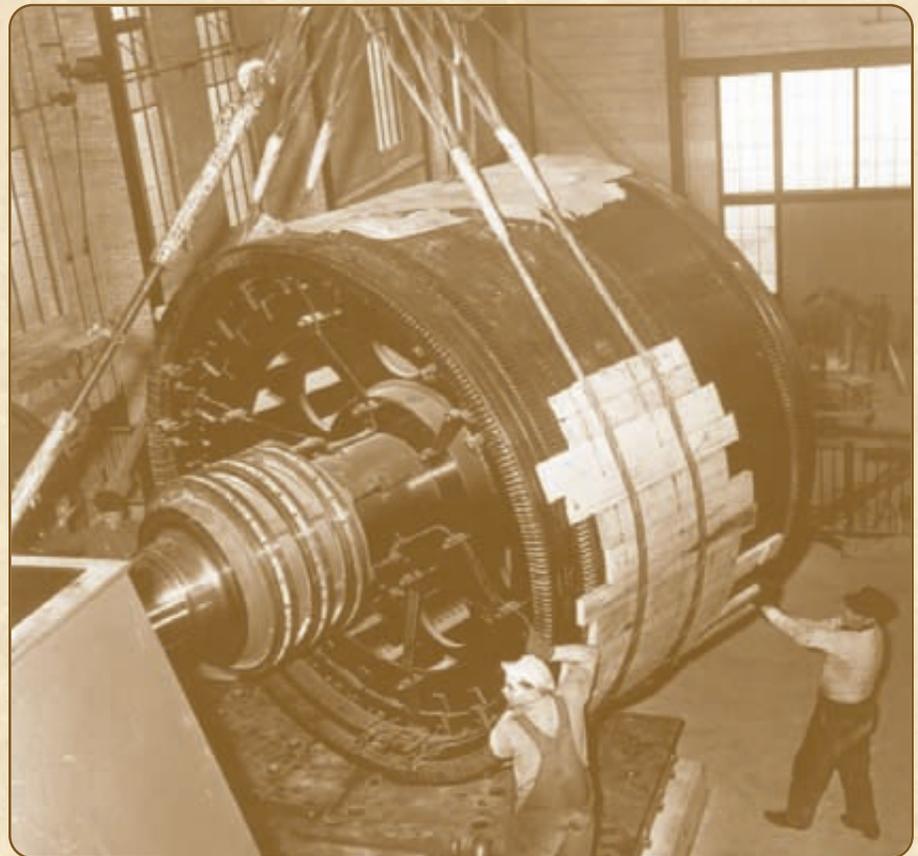

Both fields experienced dramatic expansion during World War II, in terms of real estate as well as structures. Employment at the fields jumped from approximately 3,700 in December 1939 to nearly 50,000 in mid-1945. Wright Field grew from a modest installation with approximately 30 buildings to a 2,064-acre facility with some 300 buildings and the Air Corps’ first modern paved runways. The Hilltop area, acquired from private landowners in 1943-1944, provided housing and services for the thousands of troops assigned to Wright Field. The original part of the field became saturated with office and laboratory buildings and test facilities.

The outbreak of World War II provided a crucial test for the Materiel Division, which since 1926 had managed its experimental, engineering, and procurement functions with limited peacetime appropriations. Changes were required within the Division to accommodate the massive wartime Air Corps expansion program. The functions of the Division were ultimately broken into two separate commands, the Materiel Command and the Air Service Command.

The Materiel Command, headquartered at Wright Field, was responsible for the procurement of airplanes and equipment in production quantities and for sustaining an accelerated program of testing and development. The Air Service Command, located at Patterson Field, assumed responsibility for all logistics functions, including maintenance and supply.

The separation of these functions soon proved cumbersome and confusing. The Army Air Forces addressed this problem in August 1944 when it inactivated the two commands and reunited their functions in the newly established Air Technical Service Command. This action made Wright Field subordinate to the new headquarters at Patterson Field and had a psychologically divisive effect on the installation.

To solve the problem, the portion of Patterson Field from Huffman Dam through the Brick Quarters (including the command headquarters in Bldg. 262) was reassigned from Patterson Field to Wright Field. To avoid confusing the two areas of Wright Field, the former Patterson Field portion was designated "Area A" of Wright Field and the original field became "Area B."

Patterson Field likewise saw the growth of hundreds of barracks and their supporting mess halls, chapels, hospital facilities, club and recreational facilities. Two densely populated housing and service areas across Highway 444, Wood City and Skyway Park, were geographically separated from the central core of Patterson Field and developed almost self-sufficient community status (Wood City was acquired in 1924 as part of the original donation of land to the government but was used primarily as just a radio range until World War II. Skyway Park was acquired in 1943.).

They supported the vast numbers of recruits who enlisted and were trained at the two fields as well as thousands of civilian laborers, especially single women recruited to work at the depot. Skyway Park was demolished after the war. Wood City was eventually transformed into Kittyhawk Center, the base's modern commercial and recreation center.

Patterson Field and Wright Field remained separate installations throughout World War II. As the war drew to a close, base leaders quickly recognized the need to make the most efficient use of their facilities. In 1945 they integrated the master plans for both fields and increasingly administrated the functions and services of the two fields as a single installation. This practice was formalized in December 1945 with the establishment of the Army Air Forces Technical Base in Dayton, which provided base operational support to the combined bases.

On January 13, 1948, the newly created U.S. Air Force officially merged Wright and Patterson Fields to create Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. To facilitate daily management, Patterson Field became "Area C" and Skyway Park became "Area D" of the installation. Area D was donated to the State of Ohio in 1963 for the creation of Wright State University.

Today Wright-Patterson Air Force Base is arguably the most important base in the Air Force. From its beginnings as the Wright Brothers' testing field, it has evolved into the headquarters for the Air Force's worldwide logistics, procurement, systems development, and research operations. It is home to the National Air and Space Intelligence Center, the U.S. Air Force Museum, the Air Force's graduate education center, and a major medical center. Wright-Patterson's age and history coupled with its vital air power missions also make it one of the Air Force's most historically significant bases.

Today, as in the early 1900s, Wright-Patterson is where weapons systems of the future are conceived, modified, and tested until worthy of acceptance as part of the most responsive force in the history of military aviation.

The Birthplace, Home and Future of Aerospace—that's what Wright-Patterson is about. The heritage of a legendary past spurs aerospace acquisition specialists, scientists and engineers, and logisticians, educators and trainers to "keep 'm flying," faster, higher, farther and safer than man has ever flown before. ★

ARRIVAL ON BASE

Persons intending to use the Temporary Lodging Facility should report to the Lodging Front Desk, Bldg. 825, Area A, to register when they arrive on base.

DORMITORIES

Wright-Patterson has five permanent dormitories housing 76 people each. All are located in Kittyhawk Center.

To live off base, an airman must have permission from his or her squadron commander and the base housing office.

YOUR CAR

All military and civilian employees, regardless of residence, permanently stationed at Wright-Patterson AFB must register their motor vehicles within 72 hours of assignment.

Civilian base employees must register their vehicles at either Pass and Registration Office, Bldg. 286, Area A, 257-6506; the Visitor's Center, Bldg. 818, Area C, 257-5308, or the Welcome Center, Bldg. 81, Area B, 255-7251.

The vehicle registration decal can either be placed on the lower left outside corner of the vehicle windshield or on the lower left corner of the front bumper of conventional four-wheel motor vehicles. The Wright-Patterson AFB installation tab is placed at the bottom of the decal and the expiration year tab is placed on the right side and month expiration tab on the left side of the vehicle registration decal. You must have a valid state driver's license, government ID card, permanent state registration form, and compliance with the Ohio Emissions Testing for vehicles 2 years and older to receive a DoD decal.

There is designated parking on base. Signs and curb markings indicate parking limits. Visitors should use the parking spaces marked "visitor" or "time-limit."

If you are new to the state, you'll want to note that you can turn right on red. Drivers of motor vehicles in Ohio (and on base) may turn right when facing a steady red traffic signal, unless a sign is posted prohibiting the turn. Drivers may cautiously enter the intersection after coming to a complete stop at the red light. Drivers must yield to pedestrians in the crosswalk and to other traffic lawfully using the intersection.

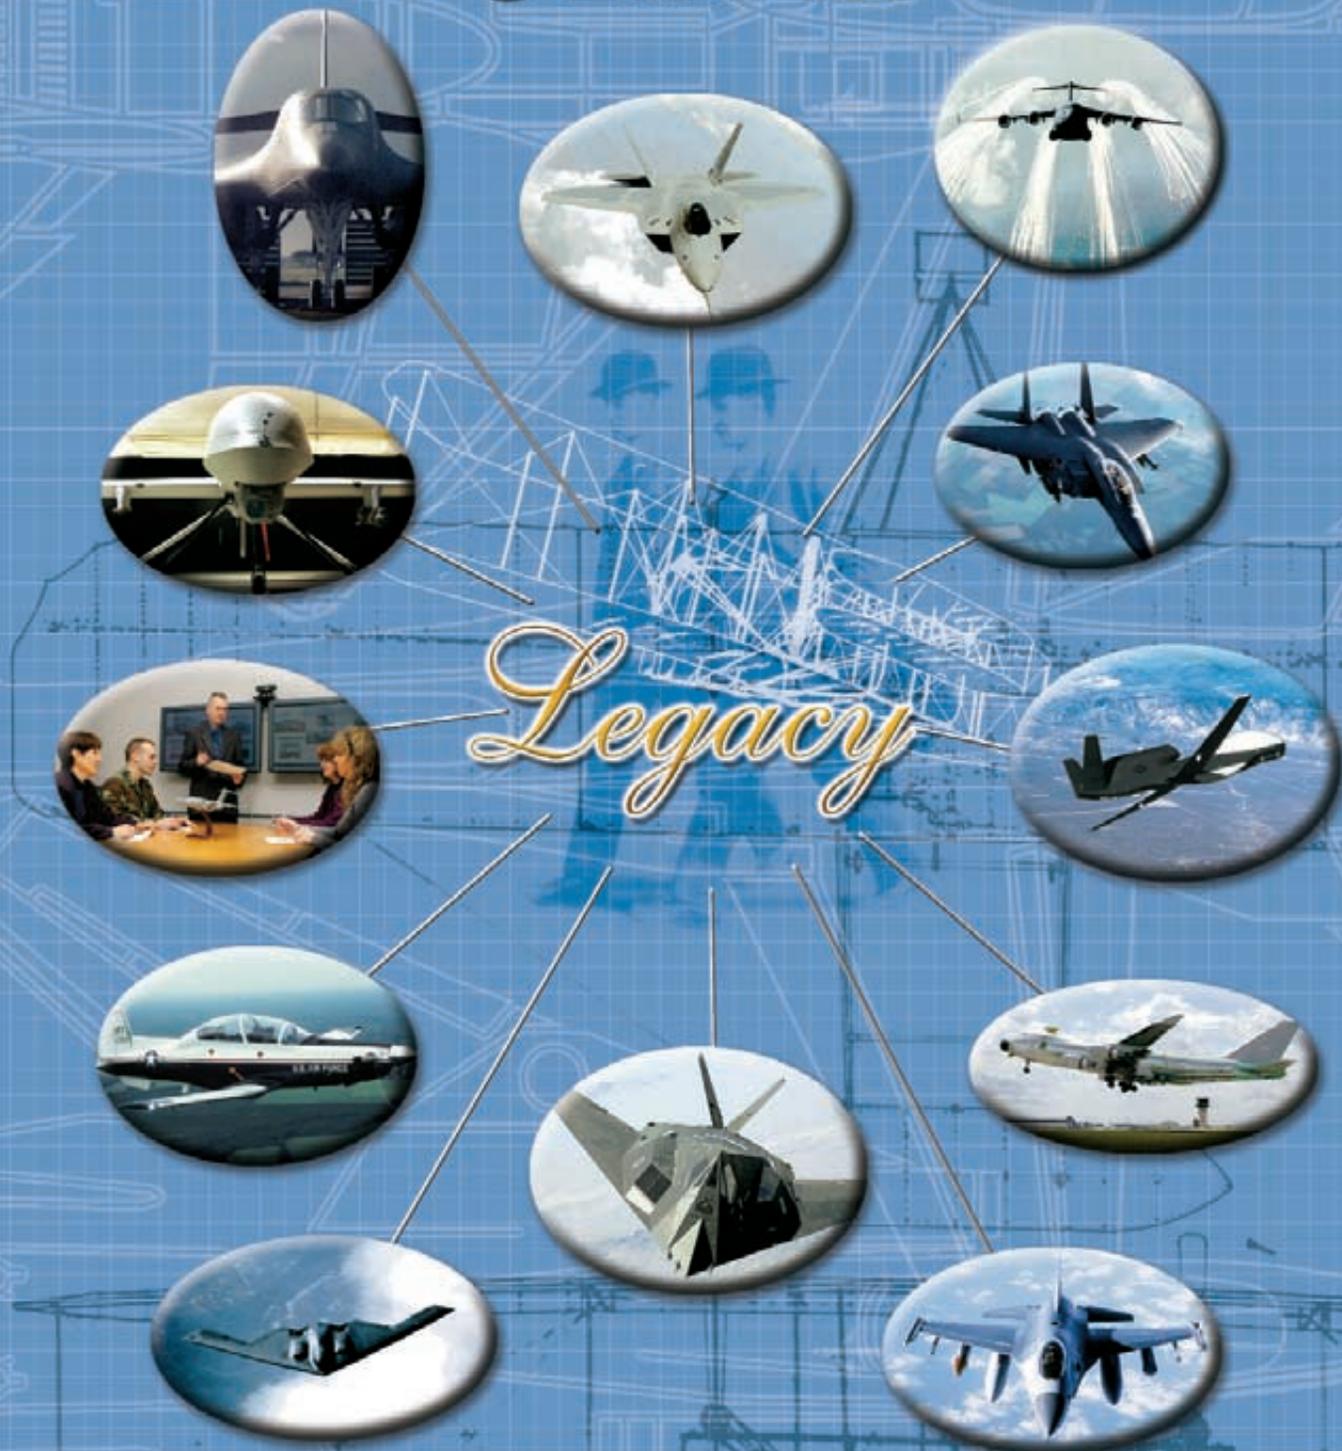

Military personnel and their dependents are not required to obtain an Ohio driver's license or license plates if they are properly licensed in their home states.

Military personnel who desire Ohio license plates should take a copy of their Leave and Earnings Statement to their orderly room, as proof of legal residency in another state, and get a motor vehicle county tax exemption certificate. This certificate will save you $5 when you buy your tags. The next step is to contact the clerk of courts in the Ohio county where you live or call 879-0252 to determine where to take the car for inspection and other necessary steps to obtain an Ohio title. Once the title is transferred, you may purchase Ohio plates at various local establishments.

Civilian personnel must obtain both an Ohio driver's license and plates within 30 days after establishing residence in the state. ★

WAR-WINNING CAPABILITY”

88TH AIR BASE WING

The 88th Air Base Wing, a part of Aeronautical Systems Center, is the host wing for Wright-Patterson AFB. As the installation commander, the Air Base Wing commander supports all organizations located on Wright-Patterson and services many other defense organizations in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Kentucky. Its functions correspond to the government of a medium-sized community. Wing people take care of more than 8,000 acres and nearly 1,600 buildings including base housing, tend the grounds and environment, maintain roads, and provide utilities, police, and fire protection. The wing orders supplies, furnishes transportation, performs judicial services, manages numerous recreational activities, and administers a wealth of people services. Its technicians oversee communication and computer networks, to include vital defense supercomputers. The wing is also home to the 88th Medical Group, which operates the Wright-Patterson Medical Center, the second largest medical center in the Air Force.

In addition to supervising records for the work force, the 88th Air Base Wing operates a runway complex that handles 40,000 take-offs and landings a year. The wing also operates a contingency aerial port, which deploys military assets throughout the world. The wing hosted the Balkan Proximity Peace Talks in 1995 where the Dayton Treaty was negotiated.

In 2002, the wing spent more than $767 million in the 14-county area surrounding the base on contracts for construction, supplies, equipment, and services in support of Wright-Patterson. In all, the base has an overall economic impact on the surrounding community of $2.6 billion.

Wing headquarters is located in Morris Hall, Bldg. 10, Area C.

AERONAUTICAL SYSTEMS CENTER

Aeronautical Systems Center is the Air Force center responsible for developing, acquiring, modernizing and sustaining the world's best aerospace systems and related equipment for the Air Force. The product center in Air Force Materiel Command, ASC manages a budget of approximately $18 billion. ASC has a work force of more than 12,000 people located here at Wright-Patterson, at Brooks City Base, Texas, and smaller detachments around the country.

Appropriately located in the "Birthplace of Aviation," where the Wright brothers grew up and first learned to fly, ASC and its predecessors have been planning, building, testing and modifying aircraft since the days of the Army Air Corps. For nine decades, this center has built one of the most responsive deterrent forces in the history of military aviation. And although the Air Force and center have changed dramatically over that time, its goals and vision have not. The ASC workforce remains committed to that excellence in weapon systems with its goal of rapidly delivering war-winning capability to the operator. This has made us the birthplace, home and future of aerospace.

To perform its mission, ASC is organized around a core acquisition work force.

ASC also maintains its historically symbiotic relationship with the Air Force Research Laboratory, whose headquarters and Wright Research Site are located here. This relationship helps to set the research agenda and ensures a continuous flow of critical advanced technology for the weapon systems ASC develops and acquires.

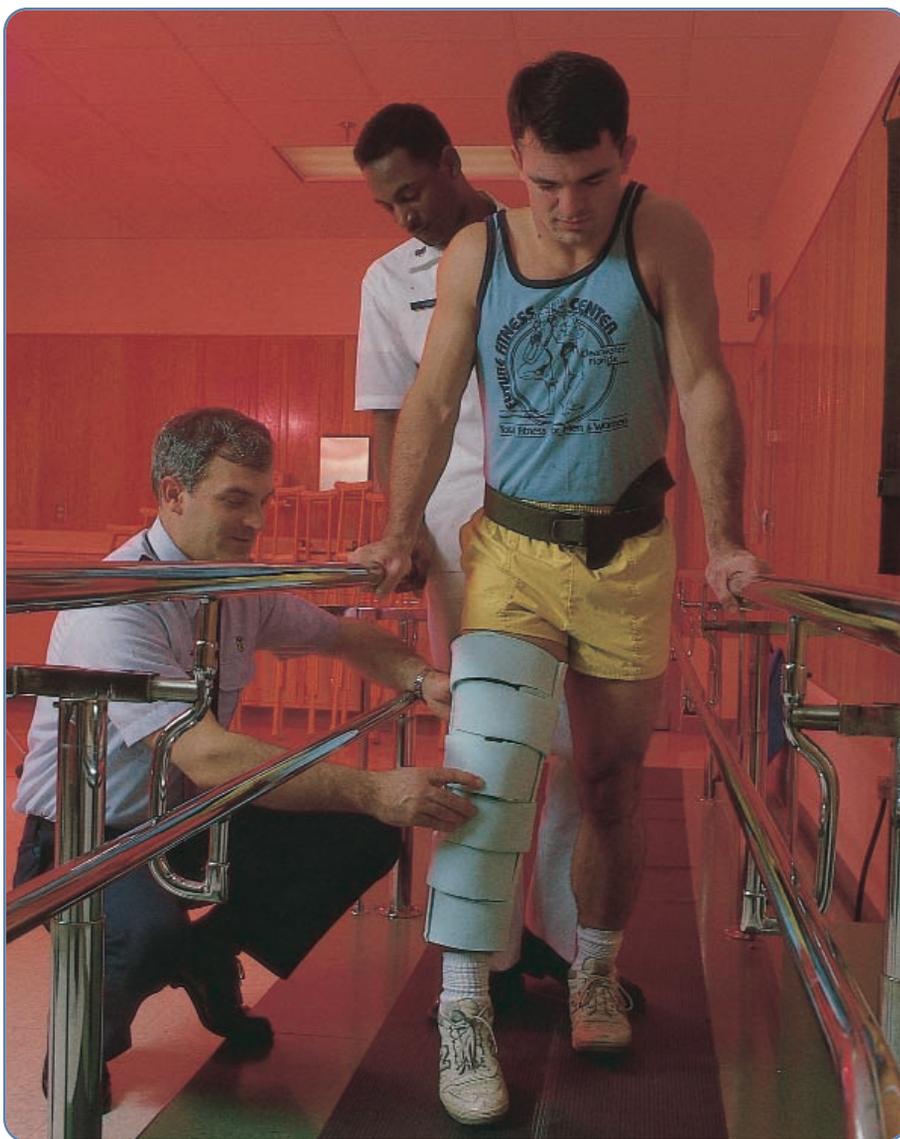

ASC's priorities include strengthening the operational forces responding to today's hot spots around the globe and modernizing aerospace forces for tomorrow's combat requirements. To accomplish these priorities, the acquisition work force is staffed with experts in areas such as program management, engineering, planning, contracting, finance, modeling and simulation, and training. The center manages weapon system development for such advanced aircraft as the F/A-22 Raptor, F-117A Nighthawk, F-16 Fighting Falcon and F-15 Eagle fighters; B-2 Spirit and B-1B Lancer bombers; C-17 Globemaster III cargo; T-6A Texan II trainer; and two unmanned aerial vehicles, Global Hawk and Predator. The acquisition team is also making major contributions to development of the Joint Strike Fighter. Over the years ASC's expert acquisition team has developed every fighter, bomber, cargo, reconnaissance and trainer aircraft currently in the inventory.

ASC is the only center in the Air Force with all the organic or "in house" expertise and facilities necessary to manage, design, test, assemble and support for any aspect of modern combat aircraft. Together, these experts provide combat-ready weapon systems and related support to planners and operational users from U.S. Air Force operational commands, other military services and government agencies, and selected foreign governments. They concentrate on producing superior military capabilities at an affordable cost, helping the Air Force maintain its distinctive capabilities—air and space superiority, global attack, rapid global mobility, precision engagement, information superiority, and agile combat support.

ASSOCIATE ORGANIZATIONS

Gate 12A, Area A, Air Force Materiel Command Headquarters

AIR FORCE MATERIEL COMMAND

Air Force Materiel Command Headquarters is located in Bldg. 262, Area A. AFMC directs a highly professional and skilled work force of about 94,000 military and civilian employees. The headquarters mission is to provide the command with policies, processes and resources and to shape the workforce and infrastructure required to develop, field and sustain war-winning capabilities.

The command's emphasis on "high technology" makes it the Air Force's largest employer of scientists and engineers. AFMC employs the most Air Force civilians, about 55,000, and has 7,648 officers and 19,771 enlisted people. This work force operates major product centers, laboratories, test centers and logistics centers throughout the United States.

The AFMC mission is to deliver war-winning, expeditionary capabilities to the warfighter: war-winning technology; war-winning acquisition support; and war-winning sustainment. As the Air Force's largest command in terms of employees and funding, it manages 57 percent of the total Air Force budget.

AFMC researches, develops, tests, acquires, delivers and logistically supports every Air Force weapon and non-weapon system. It fulfills its mission of equipping the Air Force through a series of facilities that foster "cradle-to-the-grave" oversight for aircraft, missiles and munitions. The command's three product centers, using science and technology from 10 major laboratories develop and acquire equipment such as planes and missiles. AFMC's three test centers ensure newly developed Air Force products are working appropriately and efficiently, and three air logistics centers provide service and repairs to Air Force equipment already in use. Other developmental and logistical functions are handled in the command's specialized centers. Finally, aircraft and missiles are "retired" in AFMC's Arizona desert facility, the Aerospace Maintenance and Regeneration Center at Davis-Monthan AFB near Tucson.

AFMC works closely with its customers, the operational commands, to ensure each has the most capable aircraft, missiles and support equipment possible. AFMC also provides support to other U.S. military forces and allies, and handles major aerospace responsibilities for the Department of Defense. That support includes research, development, testing and evaluation of satellites, boosters, space probes and associated systems needed to support specific NASA projects.

Hours of operation are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., seven days a week. There is no admission or parking charge. A cafe is open for light meals.

The museum exists to inform the public of the service's mission, rich history and evolving capabilities. Among its displays are items of historical and current significance in the field of military aviation relating to the U.S. Air Force. The museum tells an authoritative and illustrated story of flight from the Wright Brothers to the present, featuring more than 300 military aircraft and missiles. Over 1.2 million visitors annually tour this most popular, free tourist attraction in Ohio. The 500-seat IMAX Theater adds another important dimension to the story of aviation.

AIR FORCE RESEARCH LABORATORY

From virtual reality to laser-propelled space vehicles, the Air Force Research Laboratory (AFRL), headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB, breaks technology barriers in its quest to provide the United States Air Force the upper hand in aerospace battles.

The lab was formed in October 1997 by the merger of four former Air Force laboratories and the Air Force Office of Scientific Research. Its mission is to identify and provide advanced, affordable, integrated technologies that will keep the United States Air Force the best in the world. As a full-spectrum laboratory, AFRL is responsible for planning and executing the Air Force's entire science and technology budget.

The lab and its predecessors have overseen more than 80 years of critical research efforts for the Air Force and the Department of Defense. Its technology breakthroughs can be found in all of today's modern aircraft and weapon systems, including the F-117A Nighthawk stealth fighter, B-2 Spirit, C-17 Globemaster III, and the F/A-22 Raptor. It has contributed to significant advancements in modern communications, electronics, manufacturing, and medical research and products.

The United States Air Force Museum

AFRL's annual budget is nearly $2.3 billion, much of which comes from its Air Force customers. Its partners include academia and industry, with whom AFRL invests almost 80 percent of its budget for sponsored research and development.

AFRL is organized along nine technology disciplines, plus an office for managing national and international basic research. Each discipline is assigned to a single directorate, which has the responsibility to perform, procure, and synthesize basic research, exploratory technology development, and advanced technology development in that research area. The directorates and their units are located across the United States, five of which are headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB. Two others have subordinate units on the base.

The Air Vehicles Directorate develops and transitions superior technology solutions that enable dominant military aerospace vehicles. Core technology areas include aeronautical sciences, control sciences, structures, and integration. The directorate employs an integrated concept approach for the development of vehicle technologies to provide future capabilities in the areas of aircraft capability enhancement, unmanned air vehicle (UAV) systems, and trans-atmospheric and space vehicles.

The Directed Energy Directorate, located at Kirtland AFB, N.M., develops advanced directed energy technologies, such as lasers, high-power microwaves, and advanced imaging techniques that will enhance future warfighting capabilities. Main focus areas include advanced beam control, space situational awareness, electronic attack and force protection, and high-energy lasers for strategic and tactical applications.

The Human Effectiveness Directorate develops technologies specific to the human element of warfighting capability. Its focus areas include advanced warfighter training, decision effectiveness technology, and the prediction and mitigation of threats from aerospace stressors, toxic hazards, and directed energy.

The Information Directorate at Rome, N.Y., develops information technologies for aerospace command and control, and its transition to air, space, and ground systems. Its focus areas include a broad spectrum of information and fusion, communication, collaborative environments, modeling and simulation, defensive information warfare, and intelligent information systems technologies.

The Materials and Manufacturing Directorate, headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB, with an additional research facility at Tyndall AFB, Fla., develops materials, processes, and advanced manufacturing technologies for aircraft, spacecraft, missiles, rockets, and ground-based systems and their structural, electronic, and optical components. Their research includes revolutionary nano-scale and biotechnologies, as well as nonstructural materials such as coatings, fluids, and greases. Air Force product centers, logistics centers, and operating commands rely on the directorate's expertise in metallic and nonmetallic structural materials, nondestructive inspection, materials used in aerospace propulsion systems, sensor materials, laser-hardened materials, systems support, and advanced manufacturing methods to solve system, expeditionary deployment, and operational challenges.

The Propulsion Directorate develops technologies for air and space vehicles, including turbine and rocket engines, advanced propulsion systems and their fuels and propellants, as well as most forms of power technology.

The Sensors Directorate develops advanced technologies needed by the warfighter for new surveillance and reconnaissance systems for detection of enemy forces, sensors, and automatic target recognition systems for the precision engagement of these forces and electronic warfare equipment for protection of our personnel and equipment.

Also at Wright-Patterson AFB, AFRL has four sector offices at its headquarters that are internal customer advocates for their product areas: Aeronautical Systems, Space and Missiles Systems, C2ISR Systems (Command and Control, Intelligence, Surveillance and Reconnaissance), and Weapons Systems.

The laboratory is the Air Force's manager for technology transfer to, and in exchange with, civilian enterprises. It operates a technology connections program, Tech Connect, that provides 24-hour responses to internal and external requests for technology research and assistance. AFRL is also the Air Force's program manager for the Small Business Innovation Research program.

The Air Force Institute of Technology

The Air Force Institute of Technology, or AFIT, is the Air Force's graduate school of engineering and management as well as its institution for technical professional continuing education. A component of Air University, AFIT is committed to providing defense-focused graduate and professional continuing education and research to sustain the technological supremacy of America's air and space forces.

AFIT accomplishes this mission through three resident schools: the Graduate School of Engineering and Management, the School of Systems and Logistics, and the Civil Engineer and Services School. Through its Civilian Institution Programs, AFIT also manages the educational programs of officers enrolled in civilian universities, research centers, hospitals, and industrial organizations. Since resident degrees were first granted in 1956, over 15,000 graduate and 300 doctors of philosophy degrees have been awarded. In addition, Air Force students attending civilian institutions have earned over 12,000 undergraduate and graduate degrees in the past twenty years.

The Graduate School of Engineering and Management offers doctor of philosophy and master's degrees in aeronautical engineering, applied mathematics, astronautical engineering, computer engineering, computer systems, electrical engineering, electro-optics, engineering physics, nuclear engineering, and operations research. The graduate school also offers master's degrees in engineering and environmental management, military meteorology, operational analysis, space operations, systems engineering, cost analysis, logistics management, acquisition logistics management, supply management, transportation management, information systems management, systems management, contracting management, software systems management, and information resource management. In addition, the school offers the Master of Air Mobility degree in partnership with the Air Mobility Warfare Center at Fort Dix, New Jersey.

In 2001 the Graduate School of Engineering and Management awarded 207 master's degrees and 16 doctorates. With this high-quality research, every thesis has directly contributed to current military projects and issues, resulting in saving millions of dollars annually. AFIT research performed in FY2002 for the Air Force and other DoD customers resulted in a savings of $26 million.

The School of Systems and Logistics is the Air Force's sole provider of professional continuing education courses in the areas of acquisition, logistics, and software engineering. With over 40 courses, the school plans, develops, and conducts courses and programs to satisfy the technical management educational needs of logistics, systems, and acquisition customers from the Air Force, Department of Defense, and other federal agencies. Over 5,000 students receive education from the School of Systems and Logistics each year.

The school currently offers Air Force courses ranging in length from 3 days to 3 weeks in the following disciplines: reliability and maintainability, data management, the operational requirements process, logistics, configuration management, provisioning management, life cycle costs, acquisition management, and software engineering. It is also the leader in Web-based education for the acquisition and logistics workforce, providing the tools, skills, and abilities to manage the entire spectrum of a systems life cycle.

The Civil Engineer and Services School provides professional continuing education in engineering, environmental, and management subjects for military officers and civilians in the civil engineering and services career fields. The school offers over 50 courses delivered in-residence and by on-site seminars, videotape and satellite presentations, and consultation services. More than 5,000 students worldwide receive education from the Civil Engineer and Services School annually.

The Office of Civilian Institution Programs manages the graduate degree programs of more than 2,300 Air Force members in civilian universities, research centers, hospitals, and industrial organizations to meet the specific educational requirements of the Air Force. Additionally, this program arranges professional continuing education courses for approximately 3,600 Air Force personnel annually.

Some of the most accomplished engineers and scientists in Air Force history are AFIT alumni. Air Force pioneers General George Kenney, General Jimmy Doolittle, and General Bernard Schriever attended AFIT programs prior to the time degrees were conferred. General Lawrence Skantze, who culminated his career as the commander of Air Force Systems Command, was one of the early degree graduates. Major General William Anders and fellow astronaut Colonel Guion Bluford also attained graduate degrees at AFIT.

The effects of AFIT's educational programs pervade the Air Force and Department of Defense. Graduates are assigned to a wide range of positions in a rapidly changing technological environment. They become both practicing engineers and broadly educated leaders. No matter what degree a student earns, AFIT's primary goal is to graduate mission-ready men and women who can positively impact the Air Force.

As the scientific and technical capabilities of the Air Force continue to evolve, AFIT strives to maintain a corps of officers and other leaders who are prepared intellectually to harness these innovations and apply them so that our Air Force is prepared to conduct and sustain decisive operations. AFIT will continue to ensure that members of our force have the in-depth knowledge in military sciences and defense technologies needed to uphold the high standards of the most powerful aerospace force in the world. As the Air Force continues to excel in the challenges of the 21st Century, AFIT stands poised to lead the way in meeting the educational needs of our Air Force and Department of Defense.

AIR FORCE AUDIT AGENCY

The Air Force Audit Agency, Directorate of Acquisition and Logistics Audits, located in Bldg. 280, Area A, directs all acquisition, maintenance, supply, competitive sourcing, and security assistance audits. The organization is also responsible for the audit offices located at Hanscom, Hill, Los Angeles, Robins, Tinker, and Wright-Patterson AFBs.

DEFENSE INSTITUTE OF SECURITY ASSISTANCE MANAGEMENT

The Defense Institute of Security Assistance Management is the centralized Department of Defense activity for the education of defense personnel, foreign purchaser representatives, and United States contractors engaged in security assistance activities.

The purpose of security assistance is to strengthen the security of the United States by increasing the defense capabilities of friendly nations with whom the United States shares common interests.

DISAM annually provides resident and non-resident instruction for more than 2,000 U.S. military, civilian, and foreign personnel. DISAM is located in Bldg. 125, Area B.

NATIONAL AIR AND SPACE INTELLIGENCE CENTER

The National Air and Space Intelligence Center, a unit of Air Intelligence Agency, is the primary DoD producer of foreign air and space intelligence. It develops its products by analyzing all available data on foreign air and space weapon systems to determine performance characteristics, capabilities, and vulnerabilities. NASIC assessments and services play a key role in assuring that American forces can counter the foreign air and space threat and avoid strategic surprise.

NASIC provides national decision makers, operational commands, and the acquisition community the timely, integrated, and relevant intelligence products needed to establish national intelligence estimates, to support international treaty initiatives, to assist in joint operations, and to help in the design of superior U.S. air and space systems.

NASIC employs more than 1,800 people and is located in Bldg. 856, Area A.

55th WING/OLWP Detachment 1

E-4B NATIONAL AIRBORNE OPERATIONS CENTER

Detachment 1's parent wing is located at Offutt AFB, Neb., the largest wing in Air Combat Command. The 55th WG/OLWP was located at WPAFB November 15, 1994. One of few organizations with all enlisted personnel, Detachment 1 has a total of 12 Air Force personnel.

The unit supports the National Airborne Operations Center, known as NAOC, as a forward operating base, providing billeting, ground transportation, and ground support equipment for the E-4B aircraft. The E-4B is a militarized version of the Boeing 747-200, a modern, highly survivable, command, control, and communications platform with capabilities for directing U.S. forces, executing war orders, and coordinating actions taken by civil authorities. At least one fully manned E-4B is always on alert at one of many selected bases throughout the world—the aircraft itself will be seen only periodically at Wright-Patterson.

445TH AIRLIFT WING

The 445th Airlift Wing, U.S. Air Force Reserve, flies the C-141 Starlifter, a long-range troop and cargo carrier.

The mission of the 445th AW is to attain and maintain operational readiness to provide strategic transport of personnel and equipment worldwide, and to provide aeromedical evacuation.

The unit consists of the 445th Operations Group, 445th Maintenance Group and 445th Mission Support Group. Fifteen squadrons and two flights fall under the three groups, including the 356th and 89th Airlift Squadrons.

445th Airlift Wing C-141 Starlifters on flightline

Approximately 2,000 reservists make up the 445th, including 312 who work full-time for the unit as air reserve technicians.

Upon mobilization, the 445th becomes part of Air Mobility Command, headquartered at Scott AFB, Ill.

47th AIRLIFT FLIGHT

The 47th Airlift Flight, part of the 375th Airlift Wing, Air Mobility Command, operates a fleet of six C-21A aircraft for Operational Support Airlift. The unit provides Air Force-directed wartime, contingency, peacetime priority airlift of senior-ranking military and civilian officials and cargo with time, place and mission sensitive requirements.

DEFENSE TECHNICAL INFORMATION CENTER

DTIC, located in Area B, is the DoD clearinghouse for the collection and dissemination of scientific and technical information flowing in and out of the DoD research and development cycle. Much of this information is in the form of technical reports and summaries related to completed and ongoing research. Although limited public access is provided, the majority of the information is available via several databases that can be accessed by registered users only. DoD personnel, DoD contractors, potential contractors and other U.S. government agencies are eligible to become registered users. ★

CEDARVILLE

The village of Cedarville is conveniently located between Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati. It is within 30 minutes of the nation's finest antique shops, six major universities, premier bikeways, and numerous historic attractions. The village settlement was originally called Newport's Mill, then Hanna's Store, then the Burgh. The first official name was Milford, however, because of confusion with another Milford (near Cincinnati), the village at last adopted the name Cedarville to reflect its then-abundance of cedar trees.

The Cedarville Opera House, center of community life in the late 19th century, was originally constructed in 1886, only to be destroyed by fire within the year. The current structure was finished in 1888. It is a 1/3 scale replication of the Royal Albert Hall in London, England. In 1984 the Cedarville Opera House was placed on the National Register of Historic Places. Each year, a full array of programs including music, theater, and literary recitals are held for the enjoyment of the public.

One of the annual highlights in the village is the CedarFest celebration, held each Labor Day weekend.

The festival is held in memory of Cedarville native James H. Kyle, who, as a member of the United States Senate, helped establish Labor Day as a national holiday.

A group of Reformed Presbyterians founded and incorporated Cedarville College in 1887. The college's principal objectives at its founding was to provide training for preachers and missionaries. It began official operation in 1892 in the building now known as "Founder's Hall." Management and full ownership of the institution was transferred to the Baptist Bible Institute of Cleveland (Ohio) in 1953. Today, the institution is known as Cedarville University, a Christian university of arts, sciences, professional, and graduate programs. It provides approximately 3,000 students, 70% of whom are from out-of-state, with more than 100 programs of study, including a master of education option. Despite the growth of the campus and the expansion of programs, the University's mission remains "to provide an education consistent with biblical truth."

The award-winning Blue Jacket Epic Outdoor Drama is in rural Xenia only 10 minutes from downtown Cedarville. You'll find that lodging

CENTERVILLE AND WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP

Centerville, founded in 1796, is one of the oldest communities in Ohio. The heart of the city has been designated as an architectural preservation district to retain and maintain its historic heritage. From its early beginning as a small cross road and stagecoach-stop farming community, Centerville is now a high quality, modern residential community.

Centerville is located in Washington Township in the southern half of Montgomery County, about six miles south of Dayton. Although the city and township are separate political entities, they are often accepted as a single residential community and together they cover nearly 32 square miles.

Beavercreek countryside

The 1990 census reported Centerville population at approximately 21,082 with 25,527 living in unincorporated Washington Township.

An extensive choice of housing is offered. From a small efficiency apartment or condo to a large luxury house with the average price of houses $125,000 with a range from $50,000 to $450,000. The art of living is fine and competitively affordable. Hand-in-hand with manufacturing plants, warehouses, office buildings and retail complexes are some of the most delightful residential areas you'll ever find.

The hustle and bustle of business activity exists side-by-side with quiet, tree-lined streets, an outdoor science center, community and neighborhood parks—plus nature areas and swim clubs are attractions that complement the active tennis and basketball courts, and the baseball, football and soccer fields. An activity center in town features three baseball diamonds, a small football field, tennis courts and a picnic shelter.

Five major shopping centers and shopping areas, with more than 500 retail outlets are available to residents. There are 40 churches of various denominations, many fine restaurants, 18 theaters and a new Washington Township Recreational Center, plus the charm and down-to-earth friendliness that belongs to everybody's hometown. You get the best of both worlds.

Centerville is educationally served by the Centerville Board of Education, which oversees six elementary schools, three middle schools and a high school, providing education for more than 6,700 students. There are also three private schools available with an enrollment of more than 1,500 students. These schools are very highly regarded, excellent academically, and as a result, a very strong incentive for new residents.

Many facilities choose this area for its quality education.

The area is served by the twice-weekly newspaper The Amos Suburban Times.

Protection of property is excellent, provided by police officers plus full-time and volunteer firemen.

DAYTON

Dayton has long been known to the world for the history-impacting innovations born here, from Wilbur and Orville Wright's flying machines, to Charles Kettering's automobile self-starter, to the poems of Paul Laurence Dunbar and the witty writings of Erma Bombeck.

Today, Dayton's cooperative spirit is still alive in the nearly one million Greater Dayton residents who live, work and play in the city. From vibrant downtown Dayton to its charming, unique neighborhoods, citizens are working together to make the city a friendly, safe and progressive place to call home.

View of downtown Dayton

Hard work has paid off. Dayton can boast of its award-winning, internationally recognized arts programs, including the Dayton Opera, the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra, the Victoria Theatre, the Schuster Performing Arts Center, the Dayton Ballet and the Dayton Contemporary Dance Theatre. Several museums are located in Dayton as well, including the Dayton Art Institute, Carillon Park, the High Street Gallery, the Dayton Visual Arts Center, the Boonshoft Museum of Discovery and SunWatch Village.

Residents, business and government work hand-in-hand in the city's 65 neighborhoods to create affordable, attractive housing. Dayton's neighborhood system is a strong one, guided by a long-established network of Priority Boards, neighborhood associations and watch groups. Whether you want a beautiful vintage home in one of Dayton's historic districts, a modern home in a new development, a starter home on a quaint tree-lined street or a downtown condominium or loft apartment, Dayton offers a neighborhood for virtually every taste and price range. In addition, the neighborhood festivals, clean-up projects, picnics and special events make the areas much more than places to live, but friendly places to call home. Neighbors can also boast of a unique magnet-school program in its public school system and the academic excellence of the University of Dayton, the largest private university in Ohio and one of the 10-largest Catholic universities in the nation. In addition, Sinclair Community College is a long-standing downtown anchor.

Those who work, live and play here have joined forces to revitalize downtown Dayton. Several recent projects add to the growth and vitality of downtown, including the addition of a Minor League baseball team and stadium (the Dayton Dragons), the new Schuster Performing Arts Center, and the beautiful RiverScape park along the Great Miami River.

At the heart of the city is the Courthouse Square, a popular gathering spot for downtown workers, shoppers and visitors. Throughout the week food vendors, lunchers and shoppers fill the square to soak in the sun, meet with friends and enjoy the noontime entertainment often taking place. The spot also boasts various holiday celebrations and many of the city's special events. ## ENGLEWOOD

There's so much about Englewood that appeals to its 13,500 residents: beautiful homes to suit every budget; an abundance of parks and recreational opportunities; easy access to major interstates and an international airport; and an outstanding education system in the Northmont School district, for starters. The city continues to grow with new families, new businesses, and new parks, while maintaining its reputation as the Miami Valley's "Open-Space Community."

Carefully developed in 6.2 square miles, Englewood has retained its small-town atmosphere, especially in its recently renovated downtown area while offering the modern amenities of shopping centers, grocery stores, banks, and other numerous businesses. The city is located seven miles north of Dayton along the scenic Stillwater River.

Englewood is one of the most desirable places to build a home in the Miami Valley: data compiled by the Home Builders Association of Dayton and the Miami Valley shows that Englewood saw a 86 percent increase in building permits issued over the past year. Englewood's new and expanding residential developments include Wedgewood, Millwood, Carriage Trail, Englewood Meadows, Timber Ridge, Northcreek, and Windpointe. There are also many beautiful, established neighborhoods bedecked with full, mature trees, wide sidewalks, and smiling faces who quickly become friends. Smart Moves, a computer software product that ranks over 10,000 communities nationwide, recently named Englewood best overall community in the Dayton-Springfield metro area. The city maintains nine parks, each offering a variety of recreational amenities, including playgrounds and play equipment, baseball and soccer fields, tennis and volleyball courts, bike paths, and walking trails. Englewood's Centennial Park recently added a water sculpture feature—the first of its kind in the state of Ohio—for children to splash around in. A park with fishing lakes is currently under development. The City is also home to Englewood MetroPark, a 2,000-acre nature reserve offering hiking trails, fishing, and horseback riding. Adjacent to Englewood is the Aullwood Audubon Center, a wildlife conservation area operated by the National Audubon Society.

Englewood is located on Interstate 70 near Interstate 75, only four miles west of Dayton International Airport. The city is serviced by RTA, the Miami Valley's bus provider.

Englewood youth receive a quality education in the Northmont City Schools district. Known throughout the Miami Valley for its outstanding curriculum and extracurricular activities, Northmont is accredited by the Ohio Department of Education. Students consistently score above the state and national averages on American College Tests, Scholastic Aptitude Tests, and the Ohio Survey Test of academic ability and achievement. There are seven elementary schools, a middle school, and a senior high school serving over 7,000 students in the district.

Englewood is also home to the Miami Valley Career Technology Center, a vast educational complex on 180 acres, offering high school and adult vocational, technical, and academic courses in more than 50 skill-development programs.

Englewood is less than 30 minutes from some of the finest colleges and universities in Ohio, including the University of Dayton, Wright State University, and Sinclair Community College.

The city operates under a council/manager form of government adopted by charter in 1970. Highly skilled and trained professionals provide fire and police protection 24 hours a day. Englewood's Police Department is nationally accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies—the only police department in the Northmont community to earn this distinction. The city's fire and rescue department is a member of the Miami Valley Fire and EMS Alliance and part of an Automatic Mutual Aid Response.

Excellent healthcare is available in Englewood at Samaritan North Health Center, an outpatient medical facility. Northwest Medical Center also serves people on an outpatient basis. Englewood is within 15 to 30 minutes of major hospitals. Over 75 doctors and dentists have offices in Englewood.

ENON

Located northeast of Wright-Patterson, along State Route 444 in a quiet setting of Clark county, Enon offers toll-free telephone service to Dayton and surrounding communities, backyard gardens, country atmosphere and a children oriented community. If a Christmas Eve home visit from the Enon Lions' Santas or the Jaycees' annual Easter Egg Hunt doesn't appeal to residents, then a Fall Apple Butter Festival or a Stay-at-Home Enon 4th of July Community Festival may.

Enon has local medical services by a doctor, four dentists, two veterinarians, and an optometrist. The community provides a well-rounded sports program including little leagues, soccer, and peewee football. An emergency squad and fire department also serve the community. Numerous churches, Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, Lions Club, Jaycees and VFW are among the volunteer and community organizations available.

Services include the Indian Mound Branch Library. Children attend five local school buildings, with services offered for the gifted as well as the learning disability child. The high school band marches in the Disney World parade. Enon is the site of the Knob Prairie Indian Mound, which covers approximately a half acre and is designated a historical landmark.

FAIRBORN (THE "WRIGHT" LOCATION)

On January 1, 1950 when the villages of Fairfield and Osborn combined for their mutual benefit, the City of Fairborn was chartered establishing a tradition of growth and excellence. The willingness to identify positive approaches and work as a team is what distinguishes Fairborn from other communities. While teamwork is not a new concept, the concept of a shared community vision combining the efforts of the city of Fairborn, the Fairborn City Schools, Fairborn Area Chamber of Commerce, Bath Township, Greene County local businesses and citizens to establish direction for the Fairborn area is an innovative approach developing a lasting focus for our community. Our ability to work together toward collective goals will continue to establish Fairborn as a driving force in the Miami Valley region.

Choosing the perfect home is not a decision to be taken lightly. From patio and historical homes to residential estates and condominiums in a wooded setting, our mixture of housing choices has never been better. With over twenty-one housing developments under construction, ranging in price from $110,000 to $350,000. Fairborn offers a dream home for everyone.

Learning is a journey for life, and nowhere in Ohio does that journey offer more opportunities than the City of Fairborn. From preschool to Ph.D. programs, education is the golden thread that binds our community together. We take great pride in the accomplishment of our students and constantly look for innovative ways to expand their educational opportunities. As students pursue career opportunities, Wright-State University is there to provide 102 undergraduate degree programs and 40 graduate-degree programs focusing on all aspects of academic and professional excellence. Students have the opportunity to follow their educational dreams confident that they will be well prepared for a successful career in the highly competitive job market.

With 383.54 acres of parkland consisting of thirteen parks, a 36-acre nature reserve, and a regional bikeway, Fairborn has a special commitment to recreational areas and preserving green space. In addition to recreational opportunities, numerous nonprofit organizations cater to organized sports and activities for our youth.

As the home of the Ervin J. Nutter Center, an internationally known 11,000-seat arena, Fairborn is proud to be the region's entertainment leader. The Nutter Center offers a variety of entertainment ranging from Wright State Raiders basketball

Downtown Fairborn

NEW CARLISLE

Established in 1840, New Carlisle is positioned at the crossroads of State Route 235, which runs south to Xenia and north to Bellefontaine, and State Route 571, which transverses west towards Greenville. U.S. 40, scenic Old National Trail, is only two miles south, which will take the history buff from Baltimore to Los Angeles. Within five minutes of Interstate 70 and 675, and about eight miles from Interstate 75, we are poised for growth along the I-70 corridor.

We are surrounded by Honey Creek. A fertile and ancient river bottom, the area surrounding New Carlisle has been for many years an agricultural focused town and has been referred to as a "bedroom community." While we are a small "growing" community that embraces a slower pace, we are progressive and welcome new members to our community. There are currently three new housing developments starting in our City, offering everything from senior citizen housing to $120,000 to $250,000 family homes.

We are served by many denominations of churches, a YMCA just south of town, 100 acres of parkland, baseball diamonds, a golf course and a city pool. Just to the west across the county line is beautiful spring fed Silver Lake Beach, where there are cabins, camping, picnicking and water sports to enjoy. Our New Carlisle Knights are the current Roy Hobbs Baseball League Grand Champions.

New Carlisle children attend Tecumseh Local Schools. New Carlisle Airport, home of the "Flying Angels" is just one-half mile east on 571. Astronaut Virgil "Gus" Grissom was a member of the "Flying Angels" when he was stationed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in the 1950s. New Carlisle now hosts an "airplane parade" each 4th of July, showcasing vintage planes. There are several service clubs such as the American Legion Post 286, a 500+ member organization with a very active Women's Legion Auxiliary, Sertoma, Lions, Rotary, Chautauqua, Eagles, Optimist, Bethel Churches United, preservation and business organizations like the Masonic Temple F&AM, the Community Choir, Historical Society and the New Carlisle Area Chamber of Commerce.

For more information on the New Carlisle area, contact the New Carlisle Area Chamber of Commerce, 845-3911 or call the City Manager's Office at 845-9492.

OAKWOOD

In 1913, Oakwood was primarily farmland situated on a hill directly south of Dayton. That year a disastrous flood inundated downtown Dayton and a new kind of advertising began to appear. It reminded potential landowners that Oakwood's property was "275 feet" higher than the intersection at Third and Main Streets in Dayton. Thus began the period of biggest growth in Oakwood's history.

By 1930, Oakwood had 6,000 people. Numbered among its inhabitants was Orville Wright, co-inventor of the heavier-than-air flying machine. His stately home known as Hawthorn Hill still occupies the corner of Harman and Park Avenues.

Since Oakwood is now entirely surrounded by the cities of Dayton and Kettering, the city has reached its maximum size of almost three square miles. With 98 percent of the city in residential use, the population of 9,000 persons has remained relatively constant in the last 20 years. Most Oakwood housing is available in the $95,000 to $275,000 range. Estate homes can range up to $5 million in cost. A variety of rentals are available including apartment buildings, converted duplexes in older homes, conventional duplexes, and single-family homes.

Outdoor attractions such as Smith Gardens, Elizabeth Gardens, Loy Gardens, Houk Stream, community parks and tennis courts provide citizens with a wide range of activities.

In 1991, the United States Department of Education named Oakwood High School a "National School of Excellence."

For additional information, contact the City of Oakwood Municipal Bldg., 30 Park Avenue, Dayton, OH 45419, or call 298-0600.

PIQUA

Legend has it that an ancient Indian tribe gave Piqua its unique name after the tribe had burned an enemy warrior in a ritual ceremony. The warrior rose from the ashes of his body, and the amazed Indians exclaimed, "Otah-hewagh-pw-qua," translated as, "He is risen from the ashes."

The city of Piqua is located in West Central Ohio, 18 minutes north of Dayton International Airport. Piqua is the largest city in Miami County with a population in excess of 22,000. North-south Interstate 75 bisects the community and east-west Interstate 70 is just 20 miles to the south. East-west U.S. Route 36 runs through the city.

The Miami-Erie Canal is an important part of Piqua's history. The canal was opened to Piqua in 1837, and was the super-highway of its time. Today many parts of the original canal are preserved. A canal boat, the General Harrison, still takes visitors on a mule-drawn ride over more than a mile of the canal.

Piqua is small enough that bank tellers and grocery cashiers can greet their customers by name and big enough to offer an exciting lifestyle while still holding on to the sense of community and belonging. Ornate Victorian manors, contemporary and traditional homes, efficiency apartments, and luxury condominiums are just some of the housing choices available in Piqua. Country living does not mean a long drive to downtown Piqua. A ten-minute drive, in any direction, from downtown Piqua will bring one to a rambling farmhouse or a modern ranch house.

SIDNEY

Gracious living has long been a part of the traditions of Sidney and the surrounding communities of Shelby County. The variety of homes and residential neighborhoods speaks eloquently of an area that accommodates a generous number of life-styles. There is not only a variety of housing here, but it's plentiful and affordable. Unlike many areas of the country where real estate costs have skyrocketed, Sidney has maintained a stable housing market with prices well below the national average and, because the area has always attracted many capable craftsmen, workmanship in both older and newly constructed homes is exceptionally good.

The city is run by a council/manager form of government adopted by charter. Sidney's government is a well-run, responsive organization providing a full range of services to its citizens, including full-time professional fire, paramedic and police protection. Wilson Memorial Hospital, the county's only acute care facility, has a modern 112-bed hospital and Occupational Health Center.

Over 60 churches of various denominations are included in Sidney and the Shelby County area.

Shelby County contains eight public school districts, two parochial schools, one private school, and a school for students who are mentally retarded and developmentally disabled. There are a total of 16 colleges within 50 miles of downtown Sidney. These include 10 four-year institutions, two branch campuses of state universities, two technical schools and two community colleges.

While manufacturing and agriculture provide the majority of the jobs in Sidney and Shelby County, there are plenty of places to relax. From bowling to cross country skiing, the Sidney-Shelby County area provides residents an exceptional quality of life. There are many public parks offering a wide variety of activities, an exceptional YMCA, a new municipal swimming pool, Lake Loramie State Park and two golf courses.

For further information on Sidney or Shelby County, contact the Sidney-Shelby County Chamber of Commerce, 101 South Ohio Avenue, Floor 2, Sidney, Ohio, 45365, call 492-9122, fax 498-2472 or visit us at www.sidneyshelbychamber.com.

SPRING VALLEY

Nestled in the hills of southern Greene County is Spring Valley, founded in 1850. This tree-lined village is the home of the Potato Festival, the first full weekend of October. In 1995 the ribbon was cut on the Little Miami Scenic Trail, which crosses its Main Street and is now the site for biking, jogging, rollerblading, horseback riding, and hiking. Nature abounds in beauty and preserved wetlands as the Little Miami River winds its way through farm fields and the valley. Other recreational facilities surround the village including Walton Park, Constitution Park, Spring Valley Frontier campground, Spring Valley Wildlife Area and a bustling canoe livery.

Spring Valley has many dedicated service organizations, which include the Spring Valley Area Chamber of Commerce, Spring Valley ACTS, Spring Valley Senior Center, Spring Valley Lions, Spring Valley Lioness, Masonic Lodge, Eastern Star, and Spring Valley Community Library.

Several projects are underway to restore historic landmarks. The town hall, built in 1888, is being renovated for activity in arts and entertainment, with the newly appointed Spring Valley Park District active in this endeavor. The first cement house in Ohio, formerly the George Barrett Home, will become the town museum and its extensive renovation is underway.

The current village population is 509 and township residents number 2,400. Spring Valley also has a township volunteer fire department at the edge of the village, and is located at U.S. 42 and State Route 725, seven miles from Xenia and seven miles from Waynesville.

SPRINGBORO

In 1815, Jonathan Wright, a Quaker, founded and platted the village of "Springborough," naming it for the numerous underground springs found in the area.

Springboro's involvement with the Underground Railroad followed naturally from the Quakers' abhorrence of slavery. Even though aiding escaped slaves on their way to freedom in Canada was against the law, Springboro's residents, both Quaker and non-Quaker, answered to conscience. Through the years an oral history has been passed down and evidence of hiding places and tunnels has been uncovered.

Most of the original Quaker buildings still stand on Springboro's South Main Street (SR 741), which has been recognized on the National Register of Historic Places. Today they are occupied by quaint shops, a charming restaurant, and families who choose to live in the Historic District.

A self-guided walking tour brochure takes you on a "walk into history." You may also schedule a group tour with a costumed reenactor. "Sadie Wilkins" will tell you of her perilous escape to freedom, "Jonah Thomas" shares his experience as an Underground Railroad conductor, and "Phebe Cook" remembers life in a very small town.

Note: Many South Main Street businesses are closed on Mondays.

TIPP CITY

A small town where community pride and caring are still in fashion.

In 1840, John Clark planted the seed that would develop into Tiptecanoe City. Situated on the Miami-Erie canal at what is now State Route 571, the town was established to take advantage of the traffic on the canal. Clark named the fledgling city “Tiptecanoe” to express his admiration for William Henry Harrison whose campaign slogan was “Tiptecanoe and Tyler, too.”

Preserving its rich architectural legacy is important to the residents of Tipp City. The 89 buildings on the National Register of Historic Places greatly contribute to the quaint charm of the community. The city’s historic downtown area offers a variety of retail and service options from antiques and memorabilia, to specialty stores. It offers a truly unique shopping experience.

Proximity to major transportation routes sparked the birth of Tipp City and continues to be the catalyst for the community’s growing popularity. Located between two Interstate 75 interchanges (exits 68 and 69), 17 miles north of Dayton and just minutes from the Dayton International Airport, Tipp City offers easy access plus an excellent quality of life.

Included in a true quality lifestyle are varied recreational facilities. The city park system has more than 300 acres of developed park lands. This includes two municipal parks, a pool (a family aquatic center is being designed), canoe livery, nature area and eleven neighborhood parks. Several golf courses and other recreational amenities are just minutes away.

Youngsters, oldsters and everyone in between are kept as active as they choose with a host of clubs and organizations in which to become involved. Tipp-Monroe Community Services provides community education, recreation, and cultural opportunities for all ages. In the fall, “Mum’s the word” as the entire town celebrates the chrysanthemum flower during the annual Mum Festival.

“Outstanding” is the word for Tipp City’s schools. Considered to be one of the best school systems in the region, Tipp students consistently score well above average on standardized tests. The new 24 million dollar Tiptecanoe High School will open in April of 2004 at the northwest corner of Tipp-Cowlesville and Kessler-Cowlesville Roads.

Home: nurturing environment; safety; security. Tipp City has many ways to make a home; from houses steeped in history to cozy apartments and convenient condominiums to executive level showcases in country settings.

VANDALIA

In 1838 a group of westward-bound settlers ran into bad weather and low-supplies near what is now the intersection of Dixie Highway and National Road in the center of Vandalia. Even then they recognized the "Crossroads of America" and decided to build their homes there. The title remains very pertinent because the junction of Interstate 75 and Interstate 70 are located within the Vandalia corporation line.

Amateur Trapshooting Association, Vandalia

The James M. Cox Dayton International Airport, located in Vandalia, serves the entire Dayton area with scheduled flights by eight airlines. The market accessibility and transportation facilities, including railroads, make Vandalia a favorable location for business. Twelve corporations have their headquarters in Vandalia, along with such industries as auto accessories, powered wood-working tools, electronics, tool and die, computer and television parts, construction products, food processors and suppliers, and industries working in research with the Navy and Air Force.

Vandalia is the worldwide headquarters for the Amateur Trapshooting Association and the Trapshooting Hall of Fame. Each August, the Grand American Trapshoot brings more than 8,000 shooters and their families from all over the nation and world to the area.

Vandalia's Sister Cities Club conducts a three-day Oktoberfest with authentic German music, food, drinks and crafts the weekend following Labor Day.

Housing ranges from small homes, apartments and condominiums to elaborate, single-family dwellings.

Vandalia is served by the Regional Transit Authority and is only 10 miles from Dayton.

Vandalia has 16 city parks, municipal golf course, swimming pool and tennis courts. The incorporated area of the city is more than eight square miles with a population of 15,000.

The Vandalia-Butler School District offers three elementary schools, two middle schools, one senior high school and one Catholic elementary school. Sixteen churches are available to its residences.

For details, contact the Vandalia Chamber of Commerce, 76 Fordway Drive, P.O. Box 224, Vandalia, OH 45377-0224, or call 898-5351.

WAYNESVILLE

Located midway between Interstate 71 and Interstate 75, at the intersection of U.S. 42 and State Route 73, this aggressive town of 2,400 is 35 minutes southeast of Dayton and less than an hour northeast of Cincinnati.

Waynesville, nestled on a hillside overlooking the Little Miami River, is older than the State of Ohio. Its business district is unique. Many of the buildings date back to the early 1800s and several have been converted into antique and/or specialty shops. Casually strolling the length of Main Street one quickly understands why Waynesville is known as the "Antiques Capital of the Midwest." 35 individual antique shops plus 35 specialty shops, art galleries and restaurants are within a five-block area.

With its excellent school system, churches of many denominations, a most progressive public library, convenient shopping area, and outstanding police and fire departments, the Waynesville area is an ideal place to locate a home or business. It also offers medical and dental care, and has connections to all hospitals in the surrounding metropolitan area. More than a dozen colleges and universities are within a 50-mile radius.

Few communities are blessed with such a diversity of recreational opportunities. Caesar Creek State Park offers boating, camping, canoeing, fishing, horseback riding, hiking, hunting and swimming. Also, flying, gliding, golf, skiing and tennis are to be found within fifteen minutes from downtown. New to the area is the Little Miami Scenic Trail, winding along the river from Corwin to Xenia as the southern section for a total of 11 miles.

Waynesville also is known as the home of the nationally-famous Ohio Sauerkraut Festival, held the second full weekend in October, and the Christmas in the Village Celebration, held two weekends in December.

WEST CARROLLTON

Located south of Dayton along Interstate 75, West Carrollton is a growing community of 15,000. A wide variety of housing styles is available in the city including single-family homes, apartments, and condominiums. The city has seven shopping areas within its boundaries, and the Dayton Mall is only five minutes from most homes. In addition, the city offers easy access to restaurants, specialty shops, grocery stores, professional and medical offices, post office, and library.

The city has one of the lowest combined water and sewer rates in the Miami Valley region. The city's income tax rate is 1.75 percent, lower than many surrounding communities, and it has one of the lowest effective real estate property tax rates in Montgomery County.

The city has an aggressive capital improvements program that includes street construction, park development, acquisition of fire apparatus and other public improvements. The city's parks and recreation department maintains nine parks and offers numerous exercise and recreation programs for children and adults.

Xenia Shawnee Park

There are 13 churches in the immediate area and numerous community organizations.

The West Carrollton School District includes the city of West Carrollton and a portion of the city of Moraine and Miami Township. The district operates a senior high school, a junior high school, and five elementary schools. West Carrollton School District also participates as a member in the Montgomery County Joint Vocational School.

For more information contact the Planning and Economic Development Department, 300 E. Central Avenue, West Carrollton, OH 45449, 859-5783.

XENIA

Xenia, the name deriving from a Greek word meaning hospitality, is located only 10 minutes southeast of Wright-Patterson AFB in the gentle rolling hills of beautiful Greene County. With 25,000 residents, Xenia retains its "small town" charm and security while offering the conveniences of a big city with Dayton only 15 minutes away and both Cincinnati and Columbus within an hour's drive.

Housing choices in Xenia range from affordable starter homes to executive level homes. Whether your preference is new construction in one of our 18 housing developments, an established neighborhood with tree lined streets, historical areas, or even rural acreage, Xenia truly offers something for everyone.

Education is a priority in Xenia. Xenia Community Schools continue to demonstrate excellence and innovation in program development and performance. Project Renaissance won USA TODAY'S prestigious national "Community Solutions for Education Award" for results in improved academic achievement, attendance and behavior. Simon Kenton Elementary School's MICRO SOCIETY teaches students how what they're learning is relevant to the skills they'll need as adults and is considered a model program for the State of Ohio. McKinley Elementary and Warner Middle Schools offer the option of a year-round academic schedule. Xenia also offers nine accredited parochial schools, and there are seven colleges/universities located within Greene County.

Recreation in Xenia includes swim clubs, golf courses, city and county park programs and facilities, summer outdoor theater and music concert series. Xenia is home to Blue Jacket, Ohio's Epic Outdoor Drama, recently rated #1 in America. Xenia is the hub of one of the best trail networks in the nation. Xenia

YELLOW SPRINGS

Yellow Springs is a great place to visit or a fine place to live—whichever you prefer. It is a small town which does not fit easily into standard categories—it is not urban, suburban, or rural. Technically a village, with a population of 4,000, it has retained small town charm yet prides itself on a mix of economic, cultural, and racial backgrounds.

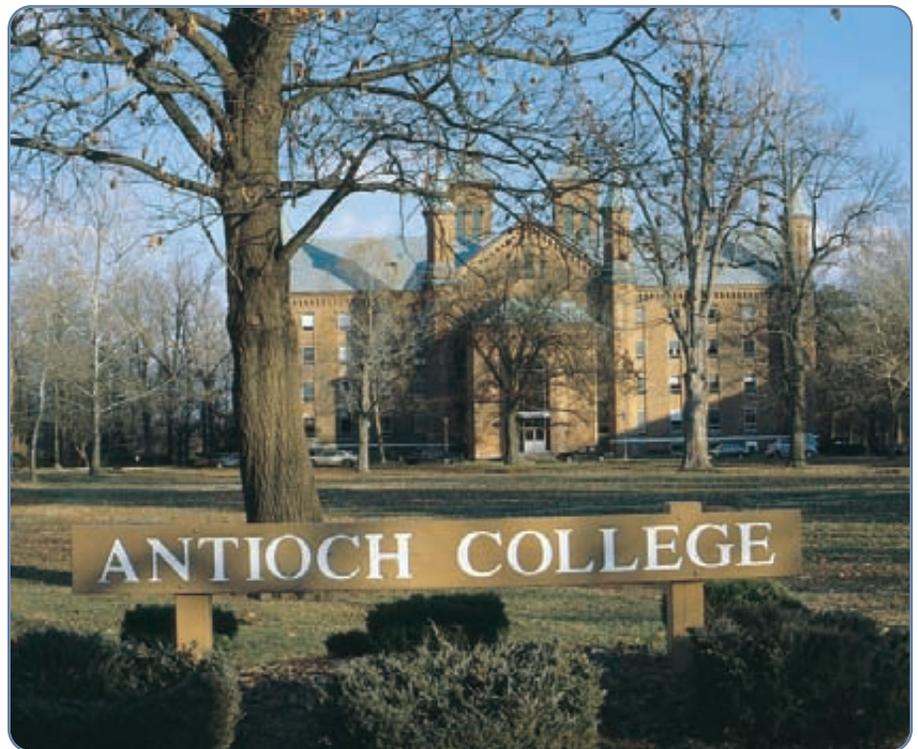

Situated in the northern section of Greene County, 18 miles east of Dayton, Yellow Springs is an easy commute to Wright-Patterson via I-675 or area roads. Founded in the early 1800s, the town quickly became a popular health resort, famous for its curative waters. Now it is known for its recreational attractions, wonderful downtown shops and dining, and earned the TRAILTOWN USA designation as one of the five best cities nationwide for hiking, biking, and skating; was named the “5th best place in the nation to live” by the American Hiking Society, and the sixth best place in the United States for active women by Health Magazine.

For the more daring, Xenia is home to Sky Dive Greene County, the oldest private jump club in America. Kil-Kare Speedway & Drag Strip features NASCAR sanctioned stock car racing and NHRA sanctioned drag racing.

Shopping in Xenia offers diverse and exciting opportunities with unique shops to explore. There are several regional mall outlet centers within minutes from Xenia for serious “shop till you drop” types.

Xenia, Ohio, City of Hospitality, is a great place to call home! For more diverse cultural activities. Natural areas extending from the town include the 1,000-acre Glen Helen nature preserve, John Bryan State Park, and Clifton Gorge State Nature Preserve. Flowing through these is the Little Miami River, a designated scenic river and popular canoeing stream. A portion of the 70+ mile long Little Miami Scenic Trail Bikepath borders the town and draws thousands of visitors to the area. Over 80 businesses are located in the downtown to serve both residents and tourists.

The village has a community center, municipal swimming pool, sports fields, basketball and tennis courts, and a skate park. Eleven churches and religious organizations meet in Yellow Springs. A safe community, the town is well served by its public safety department and trained volunteers who staff the fire and emergency squads. Physicians, dentists, and other health specialists practice here. In addition, Yellow Springs has residential skilled nursing, assisted living, and now, independent living facilities. Four hospitals are available within 12 miles.

An Exempted Village School District allows local control of schools. Yellow Springs combines excellent staff with volunteers to achieve a rich, integrated and individualized curriculum. Extracurricular strengths include music and sports programs. Local private schools include a federally licensed childcare center and one of the oldest alternative schools in the country. The home of Antioch College, Yellow Springs is within easy commuting of eleven other colleges and universities.

Three major industries are based in Yellow Springs, including the country's largest manufacturer of book-related items. Many professional services are available also. Yellow Springs has controlled urban sprawl in favor of more planned growth and encourages home-grown businesses to enhance economic independence.

A five-person elected Council heads village government, with an appointed village manager and numerous citizen advisory boards. There is a Mayor's Court with jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases as provided by Ohio law. The Village provides its own public utilities, including electrical power distribution.

Yellow Springs offers live theater, an acclaimed chamber music series, national and international visiting performers, an extraordinary public school music program, and a movie theater specializing in art and foreign films. There are several art gallery settings as well as performance opportunities for amateurs and professionals. The weekly newspaper, a journal of news and opinion since 1880, is a state and national prize winner.

A replica of the town's 1880 train station has been built on the bikepath downtown to provide public restrooms and an information center. Contact the Yellow Springs Chamber of Commerce, 101 Dayton Street, Yellow Springs, Ohio 45387; 937-767-2686; fax 937-767-7876; www.yellowspringsohio.org for more information. ★
